April 25, 2021

On Sin: ... Our primary attachment ought to be to God and the corresponding emptiness for betraying or denying Him should be all the greater. The lesson of Good Friday is that through the pain and suffering of Jesus, our sins can be forgiven. Human nature can lead us to take that forgiveness for granted, lull us into a sense of false security. Sure, I made those mistakes in the past but if they sneak back into my future behaviour, no worries, they will be forgiven again. That's not really the way it works, according to the teaching of the Catholic Church. "God gives us the strength to begin anew," the catechism reads. "It is in discovering the greatness of God's love that our heart is shaken by the horror and weight of sin and begins to fear offending God by sin and being separated from Him." Jesus Himself expounds on that separation. "Everyone who acknowledges me before others I will acknowledge before my heavenly Father," Jesus says in Matthew's Gospel. "But whoever denies me before others, I will deny before my heavenly Father." Having yielded to denial already on however many occasions, the expectation is that one can repent and genuinely feel sorry for past betrayals and, having learned from past mistakes, can and will commit to do better in the future. A commitment to do better, reinforced by a concerted effort, is something we can even inwardly crow about. (Campbell is a reporter for the Halifax Chronicle Herald.)

We must trust in the mighty power of God's mercy. We are all sinners, but his grace transforms us and makes us new.
Pope Emeritus Benedict XVI

Fourth Sunday of Easter - April 25, 2021
This is World Day of Prayer for Vocations. The world needs leaders with courage and integrity. The Church needs good leaders as well, leaders who will unselfishly care for the needs of God's people and minister to them. A Man for All Families:
A Virtual Event on the Feast of Saint Joseph the Worker
Featuring talks by
SCOTT HAHN, FR. BONIFACE HICKS, and MIKE AQUILINA

St. Joseph offers a model for all—in this Year of St. Joseph, look to him for guidance in work, family, prayer, and virtue. On the Feast of St. Joseph the Worker, May 1, join us for the second part of our free virtual event "A Man for All Families."

Pope Francis letter on St. Joseph revealed that he includes a prayer to St. Joseph as part of his daily morning prayers. It begins: :
Glorious Patriarch Saint Joseph, whose power makes the impossible possible, come to my aid in these times of anguish and difficulty. Take under your protection the serious and troubling situations that I commend to you, that they may have a happy outcome. My beloved father, all my trust is in you. Let it not be said that I invoked you in vain, and since you can do everything with Jesus and Mary, show me that your goodness is as great as your power. Amen.
