The Memorare

Remember, O most gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to thy protection, implored thy help, or sought thine intercession was left unaided.

Inspired by this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of virgins, my mother; to thee do I come, before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions, but in thy mercy hear and answer me.

For surely I know the plans I have for you, says the Lord, plans for your welfare and not for harm, to give you a future with hope.” (Jeremiah 29:11)

There are times when we have to deal with big questions. And then there are times when big questions sear deeply into our identity, shake our consciousness, tear our hearts with guilt. They toss us about with fear, doubt, and loneliness. The big questions seem to be dealing with us. We might stay up at night wondering where we fit in God's plan. Questions haunt us: Who am I? What is the purpose of my life? How will I go on from here?

When we're haunted by these big questions, we are like the apostles after Calvary's sorrow and the collapse of their hope, when rumors suddenly swirled around that some of them had seen Jesus alive. How they must have longed to see once again the face of their Beloved Master, and yet also perhaps felt their hearts shrink in the uncertainty of what his eyes would say to them.

The forty days of Easter before the Ascension were like an educative process. After the resurrection, Jesus doesn't engage the apostles on the level of emotion. He becomes their guide through the complexities of their hearts and the events that left them fearing what God's plan might be. To them, Jesus asserts the authority and gentle power of his presence: Do not be afraid. It is I.

For forty days, Jesus engages his apostles and disciples who are astonished at God's way of acting in Christ now risen. With him they learn to mistrust themselves, their interpretation of events, and their own evaluation of who they are before God. Instead, they become convinced of the reasons for their faith, a faith so strong they would give their every moment and their very lives, witnessing to others, telling everyone about Jesus and all he had done for them.

These days, may we learn the Easter lesson to not rely on our own experience, to trust God as our guide, and to let our souls continue in communion with God—no matter what inner storms toss our hearts. Peace. Sr Kathryn Hermes, FSP

THE TRUE COST was shown on reeljusticefilmfestival.wordpress.com—I had the opportunity to view this documentary. Wow!! what an eye opener on the everyday clothes we wear.

You can watch this on Youtube: The True Cost/ Documentary/Clothing Industry.
This is a story about clothing. It's about the clothes we wear, the people who make them, and the impact the industry is having on our world. The price of clothing has been decreasing for decades, while the human and environmental costs have grown dramatically. The True Cost is a groundbreaking documentary film that pulls back the curtain on the untold story and asks us to consider, who really pays the price for our clothing?
