January 18, 2026

Ordinary Time focuses on the words and deeds of Jesus as he proclaims the Kingdom of God to the people of Israel and, through them, to the world. During these weeks, we hear Jesus teach with wisdom and creativity, we witness his effectiveness as a preacher, and we marvel at his miracles.

Ordinary Time invites us to deepen our relationship with Jesus as we learn more about who he is and what it means to follow him.

The First Reading is from the prophet Isaiah, a passage attributed to Deutero-Isaiah, who wrote to reassure God's people during their Babylonian captivity.

You are my servant, Israel, through whom I show my glory... I will make you a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach to the ends of the earth.

Although the people have been released from captivity and are returning home, they are discouraged and uncertain about the future. Deutero-Isaiah presents himself as the Servant of God, called from the womb to speak God's word and restore hope. The Psalm today echoes "Here am I, Lord; I come to do your will."

In the Gospel, John the Baptist points to Jesus and declares, "Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world."

From Deutero-Isaiah to Saint Paul to John the Baptist, the message is clear: It is we who are called – called to speak God's word, to strengthen one another, and to point the way to Jesus Christ.

A college student was pondering what to do with his life, and he decided to vent his frustrations on God. He went into the campus chapel, sat in a pew, looked up to heaven and prayed, "All we have on this earth are problems and a bunch of dummies who will never figure out how to solve them. Even I could make a better world than this one." And somewhere deep inside his heart, the student heard God's answer: "That's what you're supposed to do."

The heart is the first organ in the human body to be formed. The heart symbolizes humility, for it is in the heart that this virtue has its principal seat: "Learn from me," says the Lord, "for I am gentle and humble of heart."
